

Beer Experiment

- First I obtained two beers
 - The first beer was an excellent real ale from Warwickshire served at exactly 12 degrees
 - The second beer was from down under and served at a taste-bud-numbing zero degrees
- The ambient temperature in the laboratory was 21 degrees
- In the following slide I can be seen pointing to the real ale on my right

Beer Experiment

- Next I exposed my test apparatus to the two beers
- The apparatus is not quite so attractive as that of the young lady in the cold beer show
- This does not invalidate the experiment - women and men are equal in the world of beer

Beer Experiment

- Before I could place my apparatus in the two beers something quite unique occurred
- I must stress that no trick photography was used here
- I must also forewarn that the next slide can be upsetting to those of a queasy nature.
- If you are queasy then please skip the next slide

Beer Experiment

- Yes, as you can clearly see, my right nipple suddenly extended itself to a length of some 25cms
- The tip of my lengthened nipple slipped rapidly into the real ale
- I felt a swelling of my right breast and watched in amazement as the level of the real ale rapidly fell
- The experience was not unpleasant

Beer Experiment

- As you can see my nipple returned to its normal length the moment that the real ale was exhausted
- The nipple did not approach the cold fizzy beer for one instant.

PROOF